Joint Staff fonds. – 26.8 m of textual records. – 9 photographs: b&w; 25.5 x 25.5 cm. – 1935-1977; predominant 1950-1969.

Administrative History

With the creation in February 1951 of the position of Chairman Chiefs of Staff (CCOS) came a supporting organisation of the chiefs of staff that originally comprised three entities: the offices of the Chairman Chiefs of Staff; the Chiefs of Staff Secretariat; and the Joint Staff. Prior to this, discussions had taken place since the mid-1940s with a view to forming such a Joint Staff. In February 1950, Robert Lewis Raymont had been appointed on a temporary basis as a Chief Secretary Joint Staff, to co-ordinate the work of the existing joint committee and staffs in dealing with the mass of Western European Union and NATO documents which were arriving, and other issues having a joint nature, and to submit a report recommending a suitable functional organisation and procedural methodology based on this initial experience. The Joint Staff consisted of those who served the main sub-committees of the chiefs of staff on a full time basis. At its head was the Coordinator Joint Staff (CJS), who reported directly to the CCOS, although when passing formal papers to the Chiefs of Staff he did so through the Secretary Chiefs of Staff.

In May 1952, as a result of a year's working experience, the Chiefs of Staff Secretariat and the Joint Staff were merged into one unit headed by the CJS in the rank of Commodore or equivalent who became responsible to the CCOS, acting on behalf of the Chiefs of Staff in their collective function, for supervising and co-ordinating the work of the joint staff, and became an ex-officio member of the main sub-committees whose staff were included in the joint organization. A Deputy Coordinator Joint Staff (D/CJS) was established to assist the CJS and to act for him during his absence. Two officers, the Staff Officer (Logistics) Joint Staff, and the Staff Officer (Admin) Joint Staff also assisted the CJS. Also part of the Joint Staff were the Secretary, Joint Intelligence Committee; the Joint Intelligence Staff; the Secretary, Joint Planning Committee; the Joint Planning Staff; the Secretary Chiefs of Staff; the Secretary Vice Chiefs of Staff; and the Secretary Joint Security Committee.

Custodial History

The exact provenance of this fonds remains unknown, though its contents point to it originating with the Joint Staff. The fonds constitutes only a portion of the original materials thought to have been created by the Joint Staff and kept in the same registry at National Defence Headquarters (NDHQ). When the files were listed in 1997, the documents were found in vaults referred to as “B” and “D”. However, on previous visits to the NDHQ vaults in which the documents were held, personnel from DHH received a few select files of particular interest to DHH historians’ current projects.

Related Materials

- The finding aid to National Archives accession 1983/84/167 is available in the Document Collection under 91/292.
- Numerous Kardex documents in the 112.3M2.009 section seem to share a provenance with the materials in this fonds.

Associated Materials

Library and Archives Canada has the following holdings:

- The Joint Staff and Chiefs of Staff Committee series of the Department of National Defence fonds: R112-41-5-E (formerly RG 24-B-1)
- Central registry files of Naval Headquarters: Accession 1983-84/167 (formerly : 1983-00007-8; RG24 D-1-c)
- Accession 1997-1998/260. [Researchers should note, however, that most files in this accession remain classified as Top Secret.]

Other Notes

- It is thought that the Kardex documents in the 112.3M2.009 section, the Joint Staff fonds, and the two accessions at Library and Archives Canada constitute the entirety of the materials originally held by a Joint Staff registry.
- Researchers interested in further NATO documents may want to consult NATO finding aids held in the document collection: 99/34.
- Also of particular interest at the Directorate of History and Heritage are the Chiefs of Staff Committee fonds (2002/4) and Series I of the George Lindsay fonds (87/253).
- 9 photographs are stored with Series 8: Joint Services Committee, Pacific Coast.

Classification

Classified material is stored in Boxes 27-47, 103-104 and 129-134.

Series I: Vault B – Chief of the General Staff Files

Boxes 1-3, 27-33. – 1946-1966.

Administrative History

The position of Chief of the General Staff (CGS) was created in 1904 to advise the minister of the Militia and to co-ordinate all military duties performed by the General Staff. This post remained virtually unchanged until 1923 with the exception of the addition of the Air Force to its command during the First World War. Between 1923 and 1927, the post was changed to the Chief of Staff National Defence when certain administrative services were combined under one command. In 1927, the title of Chief of the General Staff was revived when the post of Chief of Naval Staff was created. The Air Force, however, continued to operate as a branch of the General Staff until 1938 when the Chief of Air Staff came into being. When the Second World War began in 1939, the Chief of the General Staff along with the chiefs of the Navy and the Air Force staffs formed the Chiefs of Staff Committee to better coordinate the Canadian war effort. This committee continued to coordinate the activities of the three services; it acted under the guidance of the Chairman, Chiefs of Staff (CCOS) from 1951 to 1964. In 1964, the position of Chief of the General Staff was eliminated along with those of the Chiefs of the Naval Staff and the Air Staff. The Chief of the Defence Staff (CDS) was created in 1964 to control and administer the Canadian Armed Forces.

Series II : Vault B – Chief of the Naval Staff Files
Boxes 3-14, 33-42. – 1948-1964.

Administrative History

The Naval Staff began informal meetings in 1940 but was officially established by Naval Order in 1943. The Chief of Naval Staff (CNS) was responsible for the control and administration of the navy and for the provision of naval advice to the Defence minister and the government. The position was abolished in 1964 upon integration of the three Canadian forces.

Series Description

Series consists of files for the Chief of the Naval Staff and dealing predominantly with naval issues. Some of the main North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) bodies dealt with include: Military Committee; Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic; Supreme Allied Commander Europe; North Atlantic Ocean Regional Planning Group; and Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe. There are includes NATO's annual reviews (1952-1963) and files regarding the United Nations Emergency Force. Some of the subjects covered include: military intelligence, air defences, military communications and nuclear warfare. Also includes NATO's: defence planning, personnel management, the Berlin situation, history, military policy and infrastructure.

Other Notes

The North Atlantic Council decided in 1952 that there should be Annual Reviews whose primary purpose was to produce goals for the build-up of military forces which were within the political and economic capabilities of the member governments and which were accepted as national commitments. Each Annual Review started with an assessment of accomplishments in reaching the firm goals for that year. Provisional goals of the previous Review were refined to become the firm goals proposed in the current Review. Planning goals of the previous exercise were transformed into provisional goals, and planning was then projected one year further ahead. In this way, the Review process has become a continuous examination. The Annual Review process is essentially multilateral in character. The same questions are asked of all member governments at the same time, and the replies of each are made available to the other members. The process extends over practically the whole year.

Series Description

Series consists of files for the Chief of the Air Staff and dealing closely to Air Force topics.

Includes NATO annual reviews (1956-1961 and 1964) and general files pertaining to international affairs. There are also files on NATO's: infrastructure, administration and organization, planning, equipment and supplies, and air defences.

Other Notes

The North Atlantic Council decided in 1952 that there should be Annual Reviews whose primary purpose was to produce goals for the build-up of military forces which were within the political and economic capabilities of the member governments and which were accepted as national commitments. Each Annual Review started with an assessment of accomplishments in reaching the firm goals for that year. Provisional goals of the previous Review were refined to become the firm goals proposed in the current Review. Planning goals of the previous exercise were transformed into provisional goals, and planning was then projected one year further ahead. In this way, the Review process has become a continuous examination. The Annual Review process is essentially multilateral in character. The same questions are asked of all member governments at the same time, and the replies of each are made available to the other members. The process extends over practically the whole year.

Series VI: Chairman, Chiefs of Staff Committee

Boxes 50-52. – 1952-1956.

Administrative History

The Chairman, Chiefs of Staff Committee position was established by authorization of Order-in-Council No.564 dated 1 February 1951. He was to act as Chairman of a committee composed of the Chiefs of Staff and such other members as the minister may designate, to coordinate the operations and training of the Canadian forces and to perform such other duties as the minister may direct. The Chairman, Chiefs of Staff was designated Canadian National Military Representative to NATO, and as such he represented Canada on the Military Committee of that organization. He was also appointed Chairman of a new small, but what became to be a most influential, interdepartmental committee known as the Rank Structure Committee; and he represented the Chiefs of Staff Committee on the DND Estimates Review Committee.

The Chairman, Chiefs of Staff became vice-chairman of the Intelligence Policy Committee when it was created in 1960, and represented the Chiefs of Staff on the Civil Defence Policy and the War Book Committee until they were merged within the Emergency Measures Organization in 1959; the Panel on Economic Aspects of Defence Questions, and the Advisory Committee on Northern Development. He also represented DND at the secret meetings of "Consultation" between the representatives of the Canadian and USA governments on matters of defence policy coordination; and attended meetings of the Cabinet Defence Committee as advisor to the Minister of National Defence, as did the other chiefs of staff of the services, on invitation, when matters affecting their particular service were discussed. General Charles Foulkes and Air Marshall Frank Miller were the only officers to hold the position. With the abolishment of the Chiefs of Staff Committee in July 1964, the Chairman, Chiefs of Staff position was abolished.

Administrative History

The Canada-United States Military Cooperation Committee (CANUS MCC) was formed in 1946 and manages cooperation at the military planning level. It provides the primary military staff linkage between Canada and the United States. The mission of the MCC is to develop and coordinate CANUS area military defence planning. The Canadian Chief of the Defence Staff and the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff designate the MCC to be the primary military staff agency for recommending and coordinating CANUS defence planning. The Canadian and United States MCC Chairmen are responsible to the Chief of the Defence Staff and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, respectively, and act jointly on their behalf. More recently, the MCC was called upon to revise the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) Terms of Reference, develop a new Canada-U.S. Basic Security Document and to form a binational Space Cooperation Working Group to examine areas for enhanced joint space endeavours.

Series XV: Chiefs of Staff Committee - Permanent Joint Board Defence Documents

Boxes 100 to 102, 104. – 1946 to 1957

Administrative History

The beginning of defence collaboration between Canada and the United States had its origin in the "Ogensburg Agreement" of August 1940, when the late President Roosevelt and the Prime Minister MacKenzie King made a declaration which provided for common military action on a continuing basis. On the strength of this agreement the Joint Defence Board, which later became the Permanent Joint Board on Defence, was formed.

The Board is composed of Canadian and United States Sections, each made up of a civilian Chairman and a representative of each of the Services and the External Affairs Departments from each country.

The terms of reference of the Board are to consider in the broad sense the defence of the northern half of the Western Hemisphere. Although the Board has only the power of recommendation, its advice has seldom been disregarded by either government. The Board's broad terms of reference have permitted a wide variety of matters to be discussed. As it meets at regular intervals and as these meetings are usually conducted in an informal atmosphere, the Board has proven to be a flexible instrument for exchanging information, testing out ideas, negotiating and expediting action on defence matters at a level between the ministerial and the official.

Series XVII : Chiefs of Staff Committee - Joint Defence Programme

Boxes 104 to 105 - 1947 to 1958

Administrative History

In 1946 Canada and the United States agreed to a Basic Security Plan (BSP) for the defence of North America. The BSP required both countries to provide forces for the air, land and maritime defence of the continent. In addition, the BSP set out equipment and training standard for both states. More than a mere joint defence plan, the BSP represented a critical commitment on the part of Ottawa and Washington to continue bilateral Canada-US defence cooperation in peacetime. This institution was supposed to assure the required military strength and training of new officers for the regular and reserve forces. It produced a lot of Army programs to analyze what the size of the Canadian armed forces ought to be for various purposes (War and Peace). The role of the army was twofold: to provide the appropriate ground forces for the security of Canada and to provide ground forces in support of the United Nations Organization, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or any other instruments of agreement into which the Canadian Government may enter.

Series XIX : Chiefs of Staff Committee - Annual Reviews of NATO Defence Build-Up

Boxes 107 to 109 – 1949 to 1959

Administrative History

The NATO “Annual Review” was the normal outgrowth, and continuation, of the process first undertaken by the Temporary Council Committee in the autumn of 1951. It has since become an essential part of the NATO defence build-up. The Annual Review was a requirement for building and maintaining adequate defensive strength on a realistic foundation of politico-economic capabilities, and that the International Staff / Secretariat should be so organized as to carry out these Annual reviews. The primary purpose of an Annual Review was to produce goals for the build-up of military forces which were within the political and economic capabilities of the member governments and which were accepted as national commitments. These goals were developed on the basis of recommendations for improvements in national forces put forward by the NATO military authorities – recommendations which sought to overcome any weaknesses which may have developed, and to ensure that the total forces of the Alliance were kept in balance as to service and type across the entire NATO front. In the course of the review the military adjustments were adjusted in the light of assessments made of the total available resources, such as possible budgetary expenditures, indigenous production of equipment and availabilities under mutual aid programmes.

Series Description

Series consists of memorandums, meeting minutes, reports and other papers of the Canada-US Regional Planning Group during 1954-1958. Document topics include weather analysis, integration of NATO forces, and group administrative details.

Administrative History

The Canada- United States Regional Planning Group is one of the five regional planning groups that was set up in 1949 by the North Atlantic Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). The purpose of regional planning committees was to develop and recommend to the Military Committee, through the Standing Group, plans for the defence of their respective regions. The Canada-United States Regional Planning Group works in Washington. This group is the only survivor of NATO's original five Regional Planning Groups. It is responsible for making plans for the defence of the North American continent and for making recommendations on military requirements. The Group's mission includes arrangements for the basing and protection of strategic nuclear forces in this area; early warning and air defence; protection of industrial mobilisation and military potential; and defence against military actions which pose a threat to the security of the region. CUSRPG's defence plans are seen by other NATO nations and approved by the Standing Group, in the same way as are those of the Supreme Commanders.

Series XXIV: Chiefs of Staff Committee- Military Component Canadian Delegation – Laos
Boxes 129-130. – 1960-1964.

Series Description

Series consists predominantly of messages from the Department of External Affairs on the situation on Laos during 1961-1963. Also includes a file on the evacuation of Canadian nationals from Indochina during 1961-1962.

Administrative History

The International Commission for Supervision and Control (ICSC) was established on 20-21 July 1954 under the authority of the Geneva Accords to ensure and monitor the cease-fire in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, to assist in restoring order as military forces transferred to their respective areas and to control the entry of unauthorized military personnel and war material. This mission ceased to function in all areas on 15 June 1974.

Poland, India and Canada each appointed a Commissioner who held the rank of an ambassador. Each country also sent political and military advisors, personnel to staff the various committees along with inspection teams and administrative support. Canadian headquarter's support took the form of a panel chaired by John Holmes and included foreign service officers from the Far Eastern, Finance, Consular, Personnel, Defence Liaison (DL)(1) and (2), Establishment and Organization, Supply and Properties and Legal Divisions. This group received the information sent from Indochina and dealt with matters arising. Both the Department of External Affairs and National Defence agreed that though the DND component would be larger, External Affairs would be responsible for managing the work of the Commissions. The work of the Commissions focussed on the verification of cease-fires, troop withdrawals and the exchange of civilian internees.

Series XXVII: Chiefs of Staff Committee- Interdepartmental Committee on Vital Points

Boxes 114-115, 132. – 1947-1960

Series Description

Series consists of meeting minutes, reports, memorandums and other documents from 1947-1960. Subjects covered include RCAF installations, industrial and administrative establishments, and the petroleum industry.

Administrative History

The Canadian Army had been forced to make large commitments for the guarding of Vital Points in the anti-sabotage category in the early stages of the First and Second World Wars. The question was studied by a special sub-committee of the Defence Co-ordination Committee in 1939. In 1941 this sub-committee was reconstituted as a separate committee, Vulnerable Points Committee. It was responsible for the preparation of a limited list that embraced the most vital points of an economic nature. A “vital point” may be specifically defined as an establishment that, from the physical point of view, was sufficiently vulnerable to sabotage or air attack that it could have been put out of commission for a considerable period of time; and that had an end product or service specifically essential to the war effort and the basic economy which could not have been adequately provided by substitutes or alternatives while replacements or repairs were being made. In 1949 the Committee was renamed the Interdepartmental Committee on Vital Points. Thereafter, its main function was to review and to make recommendations as to the advisability of protecting various vulnerable points submitted by various agencies.

Series XXVIII: Chief of Staff Committee – Sub-Committee on Mapping and Charting

Boxes 115, 132. – 1946-1956.

Series Description

Series consists of memorandums, reports, correspondences and other documents from the Sub-Committee on Mapping and Charting. Topics discussed include air photography, hydrographic surveying, and military mapping.

Administrative History

In 1946 a joint Canadian-United States Basic Security Plan was prepared by the Canada-U.S. Military Co-operation Committee. The plan demanded that arrangements be made for the provision of a programme of air photography and surveys designed to produce the necessary maps and charts, topographic and hydrographic and other information for Canada, Newfoundland and Alaska. The Sub-Committee on Air Photography, Mapping and Charting for Defence was, therefore established in June 1946. The terms of reference were to: determine the areas of Canada and Newfoundland and adjacent waters for which aeronautical and hydrographic charts and topographic maps were essential for defence purposes; to determine the types of maps and charts required for defence purposes; and to study the present Canadian program and formulate a new program which would fulfill all requirements. The Committee's name was changed in March 1947 to the Sub-Committee on Air Photography, Hydrographic Survey, Mapping and Charting for Defence, and again in early 1950 to the Sub-Committee on Mapping and Charting. The terms of reference were revised whereby the Committee were: to provide a program for the production of essential maps, charts and allied materials to meet the requirements emerging from the Canada – United States Basic Security Plan; to insure cooperative effort based on mutual understanding of the common problem and agreed program; and to provide maps and charts required for planning purposes in advance of the actual formation of joint defence plans.
